PENNSYLVANIA PROBE ENDS, STARTS IN ILLINOIS ON JULY 26

CENSUS OF CITIES TO BE STARTED ON COMING MONDAY

Various Civic Units Are Pleased With Creamery Plan

SIX MEN WILL HANDLE WORK

Milk Supply To Be Tested As To Best Values

Census taking in the cities of Albany-Decatur will be started on next Monday.

Acting upon the endorsement of the various civic organizations of these cities and the Morgan County Health department, Decatur Ice Cream and Creamery company is making a census survey of every home in these cities. The company is making the survey primarily to determine the increase in milk consumption since the enactment of milk ordinances in these cities and to determine the amount of milk which will be consumed in these cities in the future.

Speaking today of the survey, J. W. Clouton, president of the local plant stated:

"On Monday, July 12th, we will begin a complete survey in which we expect to visit every home in Albany and Decatur for the purpose of determining the amount of milk and milk products consumed at this time. This survey will act as a census for both Albany and Decatur and this information should be of a great deal of interest to our cities and to our civic organizations."

"Six young men who have recently completed high school and have made good records in their school work, will go directly into the homes asking five minutes of the housewife's time in order to secure the information. We have selected these young men because of their ability and with an idea of helping them prepare for college."

"In putting on this survey we are happy to say that we have the full endorsement of the following authorities and organizations:

"The City Council of Albany, the City Council of Decatur, the Albany and Decatur Parent-Teachers' Association, the Mother's Club, the Morgan County Health Department, the leading Physicians of Albany and Decatur, the State Health Department, the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., the National Dairy Council, and through your courtesy we are assured the support of our local newspaper."

"In securing this information, we are not advertising our individual products but we are endeavoring to increase the amount of good milk products in the homes of Albany and Decatur and we hope to find whether or not the supply that is now available is entirely satisfactory."

Huntsville Road Is Declared Good

Huntsville-Albany-Decatur road is in good condition, according to travelers arriving here today. The thoroughfare is declared to be passable at all times of the year. Work on the Limestone county end of the road, near the approaches of the new bridge is needed, according to opinions of car drivers, recent rains having caused much damage in cutting the thoroughfare after it had been dragged.

TIGER PET WOMAN'S GUARD ON EXPLORING TRIP INTO JUNGLE

Animal Saves Owner When Dangerous Tropical Snake Strikes At Her. Tiger Woman's Sole Companion On Hazardous Trip

By DOROTHY VAN DYKE
International News Service Special Correspondent

NEW YORK, July 7.—A tiger was her watchdog. A woman explorer braved the jungle in a car, with only a wild animal to defend her. The tiger "Dip" liked motor riding, even over jungle bumps. "Dip" made the natives afraid. That was good," said Miss Lola Kreutzberg, who has just returned from a seven months' "hunting" trip through the wilds of South Africa and the Dutch East Indies.

"I shoot the wild things with a camera, not with a gun. I like animals too much," said Miss Kreutzberg. "I am gentle with them, and they never hurt me."

Found Baby Tiger
Only once, when a dangerous tropical snake struck at her, did she ever kill anything. Usually, she put up her moving picture camera, which ran by electricity, and hid behind a tree. The baby tiger she found, forsaken by its mother, in the forest.

"I like to be a woman," said Miss Kreutzberg. "That was how I could do so much. The natives felt that a poor woman could not do much by herself, so they all turned in and helped me. If I had acted like a man, I would have had to do it myself."

CHICK GRABS IDLE HOOK IN TOWN CREEK

Albany-Decatur either possesses the champion fisherman, or Town Creek wins some kind of chicken record.

A band of local fishermen, several days ago, were resting temporarily at a point near Town Creek. They stood their fishing poles against a fence. The bait still was on one of the hooks and as it dangled, a chicken approached and grabbed.

After some work, the chicken was released from the hook, but the question still remains—who wins the prize?

SUBMARINE "S-5" GOES AGROUND IN EAST RIVER TODAY

Raised Undersea Boat Almost Reaches Navy Yard

CRAFT HITS ROCK IN RIVER

Perils Of Sea Thought To Have Been Over For Flotilla

(Associated Press)
NEW YORK, July 7.—The United States submarine S-51 went aground today between the Williamsburg bridge and the Queensboro bridge, in the East river, while being towed to the navy yard here.

The S-51 had just passed through what were believed to be her major perils on the journey here, possible sinking again in the deep waters of the sound, and lost in the swirling waters of Hell Gate.

All seemed to be in order for a speedy and safe arrival when the undersea boat suddenly piled up on Ferly reef rock, between the two bridges.

The S-51 was being towed in tandem by the tugs Luka and Sagamor. A civilian pilot, who had joined the escort during the night, was in charge of bringing the flotilla to the navy yard. A second civilian pilot was on the Falcon, lead ship of the convoy.

Although the navy had ordered river traffic to be turned aside to permit a free lane for the raised submarine and its convoy, there apparently had been some hitch in the orders because the usual heavy traffic was steaming up and down the river when the accident occurred.

The rock where the submarine went aground is off 38th street, south of Welfare island.

At the time of the grounding, the tide was at flood. Officers said the average depth of the course being followed at the time was 31 feet. The submarine, as towed, had a draft of 35 feet.

Captain W. B. Tomb, commanding the Vestal, said that a buoy which would have designated the Ferly reef rock was missing. Up to three or four minutes before the S-51 went aground, the Vestal had been leading the flotilla.

STONE GARMENT CO BEGINS OPERATION OF PLANT TODAY

Thompson Heads The New Corporation Formed Here

MUELLER SITE IS SELECTED

Preferred Stock Will Be Sold By Young Civic Body

The Stone Garment company, a local corporation owned and operated by local people today began operation in the Mueller building on Bank street. The plant will employ 15 operatives, female labor for the present.

S. M. Thompson, prominent local business man has been selected as president of the corporation with J. H. Stone as Vice president and Dr. R. M. McGlathery as secretary treasurer. The corporation has leased the mill site on Bank street for a period of one year.

The charter of the corporation provides for the issuance of $1,500 of preferred stock at an interest rate of six per cent, cumulative dividend and is subject to recall of the Board of Directors any time within five years after the issuance.

It is estimated that operatives can make six garments a day and with training can produce eight garments per day. The company will make a variety of garments, salable the year round.

Leaders in the new corporation are enthusiastic over the business outlook, having investigated the marketing problems and finding that the product is of real worth and salable in large quantities. The garment manufactured locally is declared to have received the highest recommendation from firms in these and in larger cities.

The Albany-Decatur Junior Chamber of Commerce will undertake within the next few days to sell the preferred stock now offered by the corporation. It is proposed that the new plant will be operated entirely by local capital and it is believed that the plant will be enlarged within a very short time, as the product reaches the markets.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE. (Copyright, 1926, by The Star Co., For Albany-Decatur Daily).

In offering Mr. Brisbane's daily editorials, The Albany-Decatur Daily does not necessarily concur with his opinions, but offers them as the sentiments of the highest paid editorial writer in this country.

DR. COUE is dead. Every day, in every way, nature's laws work ceaselessly, remorselessly. Parts wear out in men as in motors, and no one sells new parts for men.

Merely saying that you are better in every way does not make you better; you must DO something. But Coue made men imagine that they were getting better, and imagination, which, is nine-tenths of life, is the next thing to reality.

Nature's way is still mysterious. "History of Life and Death," marvelled at the working of fire.

It drieth earth, stones, wood, cloth and skins, and whatsoever is not liquefiable; and it melteth metals, wax, gums, butter, tallow and the like.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., July 7.—William Idi, 22, Japanese waiter, sacrificed his life that his white girl bride might be happy.

His body was found in a gas-filled room here last night. He had been dead apparently ten days.

Two weeks ago Idi and Gladys Hines, 19, were married. A letter found in the room, told a tragic tale of the barrier between the Japanese and his white sweetheart.

"If you don't give me $100 to get the marriage annulled," it said, "I'll kill myself. Father says if I married a Japanese he would send both of us to jail. I don't want you to go to jail, sweetheart, and would die by inches if I had to go."

The annulment was granted by the Japanese, himself, and the gas wrote the decree.

MRS. ALICE LEWIS PASSESS SUDENLY

Splendid Woman Is Called To Reward Early Today

ATHENS, Ala., July 7.—(Special).—Mrs. Alice Lewis, aged 78 years, passed away suddenly this morning at 2:30 o'clock at her Athens residence. Mrs. Lewis had been ill for the past month and her death, while not wholly unexpected, came as a great shock to the surviving relatives, and the hundreds of friends who had known and admired her during her long and useful life as a resident of Limestone county.

The deceased suffered a paralytic stroke about a month ago. Mrs. Lewis was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Peck, early pioneers of Limestone county and at the time of her death was one of the oldest natives of the county.

The deceased was preceded to the grave by her husband, Captain William Graves Lewis, who was a native of Limestone county and who had served in a number of political offices in both Limestone county and Giles county, Tenn. Captain Lewis was owner of one of the largest plantations in Limestone county.

Mrs. Lewis' death and funeral, by a strange coincidence, comes upon the 32nd anniversary of the death and funeral of her husband. Funeral services will be held from the late residence, Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock, Dr. E. G. Mackey, First Methodist church, officiating.

The deceased is survived by three daughters: Mrs. O. W. Crutcher and Mrs. D. L. Rosenau, Sr., Athens, and Mrs. B. L. Stacey of Pulaski; three sons, W. H. Lewis and G. R. Lewis of Bessemer and J. F. Lewis of Columbia, Tenn.

Two-Hour Session To Be Held Five Days During Week

EXPENSE WILL BE VERY SMALL

No "Tuition" Will Be Charged To The Students

Local school officials today announced practically all arrangements have been perfected for the opening on July 12 of the "Opportunity School" for adults of the Twin Cities and neighboring sections.

The sessions will be held in the Albany high school and the expense of the sessions will be borne jointly by the Albany board of education and the state of Alabama. Students will have no expense other than the cost of writing materials used by them. There will be no tuition charges whatever.

School sessions will be held each afternoon and each evening, it was announced today. The school is open to all persons over 16 years of age and those enrolling were asked to specify which day is most suitable to them for instruction.

The evening sessions will be held five nights each week and students will be expected to enroll for two or three nights. Each session will be two hours. Provisions for the afternoon sessions will be similar to those in the evening.

School authorities announced today that the Morgan county health department has volunteered to extend its service to the adult school, giving all enrolled students the benefit of the free physical examinations, just as given to the regularly enrolled students in the ordinary schools.

Prospects are exceptionally bright for the success of the local school and a heavy enrollment is anticipated.

COMMITTEE WILL SHIFT ACTIVITIES TO SECOND STATE

Illinois Primary Will Be Investigated By The Senate

MORIN HEARD DURING DAY

Vare Manager Avers He Knows Nothing of Money Side

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, July 7.—The senate campaign funds committee virtually completed its inquiry into the Pennsylvania republican primary today by hearing Representative John M. Morin, of Pittsburgh, testify that he had no part in handling the money end of the campaign, except to transfer funds raised for William S. Vare from one campaign worker to another.

At the same time the committee announced that its investigation of the Illinois primary would begin in Chicago on July 26.

Morin, who is chairman of the house military committee, was Vare's west state manager in the latter's successful campaign against Senator Pepper and Governor Pinchot for senatorial nomination.

He testified that he had "nothing to do with the money" and he collected no funds and made no contributions but under questioning by Chairman King, he said he acted in transfers of funds among campaign officials and also had custody of a safe deposit box containing campaign money at the William Penn hotel in Pittsburgh.

HERRIN EXECUTIVE FIGHTS GANGSTERS

Mayor Says Citizens Terrorized By Assaults

(Associated Press)
HERRIN, Ill., July 7.—Declaring the city had been terrorized the past few months by a gang which assaulted various persons, mostly former Ku Klux liquor raiders, under the late F. Glenn Young, Mayor Marshall McCormick today announced two arrests had been made and others would follow.

The mayor asserted that Ray Walker and "Blackie" Arms, now under arrest, and "Jardawn" Arms, a brother of "Blackie" were leaders of the gang. The mayor said it was regrettable that persons who suffered the attacks were afraid to make complaints against the offenders or obtain warrants for their arrest. He called on all citizens to report promptly any acts of violence.

The assaults occurred almost nightly the past few weeks. A man named Ballowe received a beating last night.

No Static Radio Goal To Avoid Any Sales Slump

ELECTRICAL WIZARDS WORK TO OVERCOME HOT WEATHER

Peak of Production Heretofore Has Been Reached Only During Winter Months, Manufacturers Point Out.

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, July 7.—Studies marking the beginning of an effort to eliminate some of the seasonal characteristics of the radio manufacturing business have been launched by electrical experts at the department of commerce.

A survey of production, domestic business and exportation of radio equipment over the last four years disclosed that radio is more or less a six months business.

D. S. Wegg, chief of the electrical division, said that unofficial estimate placed production last year at about $100,000,000 factory prices and that ninety per cent of this output was sold to the consumer from October to March, the actual sales peak being in December.

"Factory production is lowest, in general, during the first half of the year," Wegg said.

Watch Foreign Sales
Experts are examining foreign sales of radio equipment with a view to shipments so arranged by months that they may come during the slump in the domestic market.

Manufacturers of radio materials, knowing where the low points in their production curve are and taking into consideration their ability to carry finished products in stock, and the time lag between receipt of order and shipments, can determine in which part of the world sales efforts should be made," Wegg said.

Considering the world as a whole, shipments are smallest in the first quarter and largest in the fourth quarter of the year. In order to even out the production curve the amount of radio shipped in the first half of the calendar year increased relative to the total amount shipped during the year, according to Wegg.

He added:
"The variation in quarterly shipments is greater in the case of Japan than in that of the Southern Hemisphere, Canada or the world as a whole, the lowest point coming in the first quarter."

"It would seem that a manufacturer desiring to flatten his production curve should increase his selling efforts in the Southern Hemisphere and in Japan, especially late in the year, so that his shipments to that area during the first half of the calendar year might show a marked increase."

South Of The Equator
"This would get the goods on the market in the Southern Hemisphere during the autumn in that part of the world, which would be of further advantage."

The commerce department survey showed that from 1922 to 1925

HENRY MURPHY IS TO AWAIT TRIAL

Held In Connection With Slaying of a Woman

ATHENS, Ala., July 6. (Special).—Henry Murphy, white, age about thirty-five years, was bound over by Judge J. E. Clem in Inferior court here today to await the action of the grand jury on a charge of first degree murder.

Murphy is accused of killing Mrs. Jess Patterson near Mooresville in this county, Sunday evening, June 27. The case is interesting for the reason that Murphy ever since his arrest has protested his innocence and laid the blame on Will LaFollett, brother of the dead woman.

LaFollett was the principal witness for the prosecution at the trial, and according to his version Murphy was the aggressor in the affair; Murphy on the other hand introduced witnesses whose testimony tended to show that he acted in self-defense. The testimony of a number of witnesses was impeached.

According to most of the testimony, Mrs. Patterson was an innocent victim, the evidence seeming to show that she was killed by a load from a shotgun which was not intended for her, when Murphy and LaFollett were scuffling. The jury trial will take place in September.

'Good Luck for Noah—A Bad Bird for Me'

WHEN a bird flies into a window, especially the window of newlyweds, it is, according to the old superstition, an evil omen.

It happened to Louise Brower while she was suing her husband, Frank Keresny, for divorce. It was a pigeon, in that case, and now Louise has taken a sudden dislike to pigeons.

But it was a dove, another bird of the same species, that brought the olive branch to Noah, signifying the end of the flood. The dove ever since has been regarded as an emblem of peace and good will. Maybe Louise never did like pigeons anyway. Perhaps when she was a little girl there was a whole drove of them flying around the top of the house and making curious sounds, early in the morning when Louise wanted to sleep. Probably she had to eat squab pie when she wanted fried chicken and that's enough to disgust anybody with pigeons.

Then again, Louise may not have been in a humor to receive doves of peace, when the pigeon flew in. And any woman who has just had a final agreement with the man she one time loved can tell you that a messenger of peace is the last thing on earth she wants to see at that moment.

By this time it may be that Mrs. Keresny is beginning to recall all the good points about hubby and to think that perhaps after all he wasn't so bad.

Couldn't the superstition be reversed in Louise Brower's case, and the cooling visitor taken as a sign of future good-will and happiness?

It's up to Louise and hubby!

"There is no use in talking, one just cannot appreciate the real honest to goodness satisfaction and relief that they can really get from your wonderful Herbal remedy known as Herb Juice until after they have taken it, because lots of people told me how good it was and praised it very highly yet, I did not think it was anything like as wonderful as I found it to be. And I am glad to give this public statement in its behalf," said Mr. Nick Flach, who resides at 612 South Church street, Belleville, Ill., in a recent conversation with the special representative.

MR. NICK FLACH

Continuing his remarks, Mr. Flach said, "For a good long time I have been in a very poor state of health generally speaking. My whole system seemed to be out of whack and I was run down all over. I could not sleep at night; could not eat and enjoy it; was dreadfully constipated and was afflicted with many other ailments which go with constipation. And I, like many other suffering as I did, was forever searching for something that would give me relief, but am frank to say that I never found it until at last I tried your great laxative preparation known as Herb Juice. This remedy seemed to just take hold of me from the start. I continued taking it regularly and today I am happy to say that I feel like a new man. It has completely reconstructed my entire system. CULLMAN OPENS A PATTERSON DRIVE

Campaigners Pleased With Progress In That County

With the aid of Patterson men from Albany-Decatur and Hartselle a Patterson for Governor club has been organized at Cullman with Dr. G. W. Bledsoe as chairman. Much enthusiasm was brought into the political meeting with the talks of S. H. Green, Chas. Rountree and T. A. Bowles. The campaigners are firm in their conviction that Cullman county will be found in the Patterson column in the August primaries.

The following officials were elected: Dr. G. W. Bledsoe, chairman; J. R. Tucker, vice chairman; Roy B. Williams, secretary. Chairman Bledsoe named S. H. Green, A. P. Martin, John F. Allgood, J. W. Waller and M. L. Robertson as an advisory council.

Talks followed the election of officials, including the talk of M. L. Robertson, Mayor of Cullman, who stated that the City of Cullman was under a debt of gratitude to Patterson on account of what he had done for the city, and for that reason, he was supporting the Morgan County candidate. The Mayor stated that through the efforts of Mr. Patterson, as a member of the Public Service Commission, the rate on coal from Birmingham to Cullman had been reduced 55 cents per ton, a saving to the city of Cullman alone of over $1,000 per year, and a further saving to the coal users of the city and county of perhaps an equal amount. That in addition, Mr. Patterson, through his field forces, had rendered the city valuable aid in the matter of light and water rates, and extensions, and other matters connected with the public utility owned and operated by the City of Cullman.

J. W. Waller local manager of the Southern Bell Telephone Co., stated that when Mr. Patterson was running for President of the Public Service Commission, that one plank in his platform was to reduce the telephone and telegraph rates. He made good that promise soon after he was elected and they were lowered about 20 per cent.

TENNESSEE LAD GOES TO THE EXTREME IN UP-UPPING CHIVALRY

In New York the other day a youth from Tennessee, who had been reared with the idea that woman is sacred and her name should not be smeared with the filth of lips, shot another who had said that girls who wore knickers were not innocent. The Tennessee youth is in a great deal of trouble, the idle talker is dead.

It is difficult to find sympathy for the idle talker, plenty of course for his family and those who loved him, but for the man himself it is hardly necessary to explain that the world is better off without his tongue wagging.

To the young man from Tennessee there will be little hope for getting out of the "scrape." In an unguarded moment he did a very foolish act, so far as man made laws go, he has sacrificed his life for a principle, a principle most men do not even bother to keep alive after they become of age. Fired with the thought that he was upholding the old chivalric South this young man overdid his act. Far better for his Southern idealism had he smashed the talker in the face and forever forewarned him against talking of women.

There is nothing more revolting than coming into the presence of men of the "talker" type, men who have nothing to do but stand upon street corners and talk of women who pass, women who do not pass, but women just the same. Women of whom they know little, always speaking of what "they said." People of such types may swell the population of a city, but they might better understand were they not classified as population, but as pigs.

The chivalric South has disintegrated, people in the South must admit that statement to truth. Men who uphold the traditions of womanhood are still in the majority, but they are content to uphold the traditions themselves and not see to it that others abide by the same law. Perhaps the teaching against fighting, the teaching to tend to one's own business has had a great deal to do with such a condition, but to most of us, regardless of our social restrictions, fighting is necessary on such occasions.

Some say that women are responsible for such a condition of affairs, that she has let the bars down of her own free will and that no more can be expected than the treatment she is now receiving. Such an opinion is based on the style of dress, the habit of smoking and the ability "not to blush." Reverend James D. Hunter some Sundays ago said a significant thing in connection with the story of modern woman. The pastor stated that dress is a matter of taste and is acceptable so long as the moral fibre of the race is not touched by stylists. Rev. Hunter was correct in his opinion and The Daily as one agency of the people, stands and believes that the moral fibre of woman has not been touched. Woman of today is as pure and good as the woman of a former age. She is perhaps more independent, but this should resolve itself into good rather than bad. Woman should be sacred to man. If he could only remember that a good woman brought him into this world and always protected him so far as she possibly could there would be less talk of moral looseness, less street corner gossip about women who pass, less prediction that the race is going to the dogs because mothers are falling in their duties.

ANOTHER CHANCE IS GONE, THE DUTY FALLS AGAIN TO OUR SHOULDERS

Congress has adjourned, another chance is gone, the Muscle Shoals issue is dead again so far as the Tennessee Valley is concerned for quite a time, the crow comes home to roost, in other words the responsibility of city progress again becomes our turn to wear either by choice or by force.

For the majority of Albany-Decatur it is a matter of wearing by choice, civic battles have ever been fought, civic coats have ever been worn by the faithful few. They have long since learned not to depend upon the outside giant who may come in if every condition is just so, waiting to a king's taste.

So the responsibility comes home to rest. If we would sell our real estate we will have to advertise to the world that we have real estate to sell; Muscle Shoals is not going to do that little trick for us. If we would expand our business then we must provide our own means for expansion, the world is not interested in the least, the world is interested in success, if you can produce others are interested, if you wait for the aid of others you will soon find that they are not interested in the least. Albany-Decatur is bound to be greatly interested in what Albany-Decatur is going to do this next intervening time, between now and the time that hope will arise anew with the reconvening of congress.

We may as well look the facts squarely in the face and ask ourselves what is to be done at home when there is no outside aid to count upon specifically. Frankly there is a world of things to be done at home, even if it is from the meagre beginning of cleaning the backyard. Even that is civic pride, productive of civic progress.

There are industries which might be started locally, industries headed by local people. Why not trust local people to know as much about the chosen line of business as the outsider? Why not invest with people whom you have known for years, trusting them to employ the hundreds of unemployed and at a profit to you? That is something vital to think about within these next few months. If there isn't a big industry to be brought here with local capital then why not establish an industry ourselves, invest our money and fight for success from the very beginning, having full control of the business situation and at the same time offering our other business endeavor an opportunity to breathe with new avenues of income opened?

The Daily has not a resolution to offer regarding such a proposal, neither has this newspaper any string of testimonials to show that such propositions have met with phenomenal success at other points, yet this newspaper believes that industries started here by local people can be just as successful as industries brought here and run by other people on the money of our own people. Perhaps it might prove interesting if such a proposal was backed with local money, such a proposition on a small scale is being tried now, it is in the experimental stage. The Daily hopes this plan will meet with success and hopes that it may have a hand in lending aid toward the project. It would be a great thing to bring a great plant here, still a greater thing to provide money for local people to place an Albany-Decatur product on the market with the result to be spent right here in Albany-Decatur, all of it. Success to those now embarking upon the plan.

CARMICHAEL HANGS ON IN THE RACE, ONLY TO MEET FAILURE

A. H. Carmichael, a splendid gentleman from Tusculum, Colbert county, is in the gubernatorial race, presumably to win. Mr. Carmichael evidently doesn't care to look at the issue squarely, for if he did take more than a glance at the coming of August 10, there is reasonable assurance to believe that he would "fold his tents like the Arabs and as silently steal away." Mr. Carmichael is recognized as a leader in his own home community, there are lots of such leaders, perhaps two or three in every town or city in the state of Alabama, yet the people of Alabama do not rise up and attempt to send such leaders to the executive mansion, there to guide the destinies of the greatest state in the Southland for a term of four years. They feel that the big frog in the little pond parable is adequate in describing why they fail to send their chosen leaders into hotly contested state races. They prefer to keep them at home to take care of responsible positions within the city or county, they do not think of them in the light of gubernatorial calibre.

When the light of day breaks on August 10, the Tusculum candidate is going to realize just how little effect he has had in the governor's campaign. He is going to realize that though he has striven to oust Andrew G. Patterson in his home section and take away from him the prize which he seeks, he has failed miserably and that even the scattering vote he has received in Patterson's section did not prove sufficient to defeat or even hinder the Morgan man in his race.

As the governor's race now stands, there are but two candidates in the race, so far as the people are concerned. The political machine is doing all in its power to stem the backwash from the McDowell candidacy, the people are rallying to the strongest fortress in the race, a fort built on five points and presented to the people more than a year ago, a statement of facts and issues from which was gleaned the major portion of the platforms of the other three candidates, the five points in the platform of Andrew Patterson.

Carmichael says Education; McDowell says Roads; Graves says very little at all, and Patterson tells the people frankly what they can expect if he is elected, just what position he is going to take with regard to every issue. Mr. Patterson is not a man to deviate, he has not proved so in business life in Morgan county nor as chief of the public service commission.

It is strange that there should even be any doubt in the minds of voters regarding the outcome of the primaries next month. Patterson's strength is growing by leaps and bounds, just at a time when every candidate is bending effort to hold his own. Patterson is not attempting to hold his own, Patterson is not even begging and pleading and promising for the vote. He is presenting the issue and leaving the people to draw their own conclusions. Their conclusion is immediate for wherever the Morgan man is heard he is hailed with cheers as he goes the routes of his campaign addresses. Patterson started into this fight on a solid basis but since the month of June passed into history his strength has increased daily. As the man to defeat Charles McDowell he will again demonstrate his ability as "Patterson, the vote getter." It's "Patterson and Progress" at the polls in August.

Sturdy Bodies Are Built by Foods That Have in Them the Minerals Necessary to Form a Hardy Bone Structure.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.
United States Senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

ONE of the speakers at the American Child Health Association at the American Health Congress the other day said: "The gain of an inch in height and a corresponding increase in weight may be looked for in the next generation, because of our better diet habits."

I believe this. It is a reasonable expectation that proper food administered in the right quantities to the growing child will have much to do with its growth and development. Unless there is a supply of the mineral elements needed to give growth to the bones, there can be no expectation of proper development. It is just as reasonable to expect an abundant crop from a depleted soil as it is to expect normal growth of body without a supply of the elements needed for the building process.

I may be utterly mistaken about it, but I have long believed that a dozen healthy babies belonging to a racial group historically small of stature, might, by proper feeding, be developed into adults as large as the average American. Racial groups are controlled in their choice of food by racial prejudice. All of them take certain foods and all of them reject other foods. It may be that they are rejecting the foods which are needed to give greater growth of bones and body.

I may be over-enthusiastic in my belief that a dozen such babies could be developed into large-sized adults, but I am very confident that proper feeding over a period of two or three generations would bring about the greater development of height and weight.

Any race of people making abundant use of milk in feeding the growing children is very likely to be a race of well-developed adults. Fortunately, those races making little use of milk are peoples living in lands where sunlight abounds. The growing children have the benefit of exposure to the rays of the sun, and in some mysterious way these magic rays make up to the body what the food fails to give. If we could combine with the sunlight proper feeding, I can believe that the entire physical nature of several races would be changed.

The chief objection to the encouragement of children in carrying out the danger of time starvation. The appetite of the child is satisfied with the sugar. In consequence, the child does not take the lime-carrying vegetables, and particularly the milk, which is so rich in lime. It is tremendously important that the growing child should have an abundance of lime, because this element is necessary for the growth and development of the bones of the body.

I have no doubt that the doctor speaking at the Atlantic City convention had in mind the effects of the feeding of foods carrying the minerals necessary for the upbuilding of the supporting tissues of the body. If these elements are supplied in abundance I truly believe that there might be a gain of an inch in height and a corresponding increase in weight in the next generation.

COMMANDER BYRD, first class American and first human being to fly over the North Pole, told Wall Street men, who entertained him, that he once planned to try his luck in Wall Street. Only lack of cash held him back.

Many pale, thin ghosts that haunt New Street and the backdoor of the Stock Exchange at night would advise Byrd to stick to the North Pole—a much safer resort.

J. Pierpont Morgan asked Byrd, who called at his office, what the chances were for a branch bank at the pole. Byrd replied that Eskimos care nothing for money, the bank would have to deal in red beads. Mr. Morgan was not tempted.

John D. Rockefeller believed in seeing for himself. He has actually drilled and "brought in" a good oil well, inside the arctic. It is plugged up, held in reserve, waiting for better transportation facilities. You might call that foresight.

IT IS estimated that the United States will produce 710,000,000 barrels of oil this year, nearly seven barrels for every man, woman and child.

Oil, variously used, represents power and efficiency. And civilization today depends on production of energy, apart from human labor, as in olden times it depended on slave labor; before machinery was perfected. Every barrel of oil, every horse power or steam or electricity ought to mean greater freedom for human beings.

BROKEN HEARTS OF HOLLYWOOD

Copyrighted by Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
"BROKEN HEARTS OF HOLLYWOOD" with Louise Dresser is a Warner picture production of this novel.

SYNOPSIS
Betty Terrell and Hal Churney, in Hollywood as the winners of newspaper contests for movie prizes, are depressed by the number of people seeking work. Betty meets Virginia Perry, erstwhile star, now a failure. Marshall, reputed to be responsible for many of the "broken hearts of Hollywood," takes Betty for an auto ride, arousing Hal's jealous anger. Betty and Hal are dismal failures in their first attempt at acting. Old friends see a mysterious resemblance in Betty to someone they cannot remember.

CHAPTER X—Continued.
Other things there were, too, that affected the destinies of Hal and Betty. In the first place, Betty had maintained a growing friendship with Clara, who worked hard, conchering her, trying to eradicate those little faults of mannerism so tiresome to perceptive directors. Clara, with tongue held in cheek by the white lies of her soft heart, tried to buoy up Betty's confidence. Betty often thought of Mrs. Perry and the strange feeling she had when she first looked into that fallen woman's eyes. But Mrs. Perry had come no more, and word reached Betty that she "was off on another bat," and that she had been fired from the cast of McLean's picture and barred from the Studio.

Betty wanted to look her up, but Clara dissuaded her.
"No use, with people of that sort, kid. There ain't room for reason and sin in the same body. Wait until she mope out of this spree if she does, and then we'll work on her."

That had knocked Betty back to the starting point again. That was her history—always making false starts, always left at the post.

Lunch hour was their silver lining to the cloud.

Then there were the constant rumors that fly thick and fast around every movie lot, as around every other business that depends for its sustenance upon the moods and seasons of public taste and fancy. This wholesome layoff, without warning or explanation, of technical and specialized help disconcerted her. It struck Betty at least once a day with stark logic that the motion picture business was an industrial quicksand.

But in Hal's level head was the common sense and clear vision of the far horizoned pioneer whereon he was bred. So he rationalized to Betty about all these alarms and portents:

"If people only went to banks or ate food or rode on trains in the winter," he explained sagely in the simple and unpretentious way of a man accustomed to plenty of elbow room, "or if people picked out their banks by the color of the teller's vest, or their trains by how the conductor parted his hair, or their food by the pretty girl pictures on the cans, then those businesses would periodically go out of kilter, too. For instance, fewer people go to the movies in the hot weather, and receipts from the Exchanges are poor. Therefore, it's a tradition in the Studios that July and August are bad months, that no raises in pay are ever given during those months, and that most clean-outs come then."

"Oh, it isn't anything like I expected!" cried Betty, her voice peevish with disappointment.
"I'm kinda flattened, too. I guess all the glamour and romance are only in what people see on the screen—and in back of the screen there's little but sordidness and uncertainty, the same as in the salaried caressing industry and every other, I guess."

"Hal, you're getting positively cynical. You're beginning to talk like Clara."
"Well, Clara's right. And she's told me that the only reason she sticks to it is because she doesn't know anything else to do—she's, but deep in her heart the real reason is that she still hopes some day for a chance to become a star."

PENNSY 'SLUSH FUND' EXPOSE WORRYING THE REPUBLICANS

Capital Politicians Bewail Probe As Probably Putting Damper On Raising Campaign Contributions This Year

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, July 7.—The politicians around the capital are bawling the exposure of Pennsylvania's $3,000,000 primary for more reasons than one.

The revelations of enormous expenditures, and of wholesale subsidization of voters through the convenient method of hiring thousands of "watchers," could not have come at a more inopportune time for those whose duty it is to dig up the financial sinews of the current campaign.

Obtaining donations for a national political campaign is always difficult business at best. It is difficult in Presidential years, when the whole administrative complexion of the country is at stake, but it is infinitely more difficult in the off-years when there is only Congress to elect.

Spotlight Hurts
The spotlight of publicity which the Reed Committee has turned on Pennsylvania and is going to turn on Illinois and probably a few other states before it gets through, has made the job this year doubly hard.

"How are we going out and raise any money," wailed one prominent republican, who has had considerable experience in the game, "when we have to admit to the man we are soliciting that he may be hauled down to Washington to submit to a lot of impertinent questions about his business life's relations, and where he got this money he is giving us for the good of the cause? It just can't be done. They're not going to come across, when they think of that angle. Jim Reed has given us an economy campaign for fair."

The Republicans are harder hit than the Democrats this year because they have to fight harder to hold what they have. Of the 34 senate seats at stake, all but seven are in contested territory. Only seven Democrats are up for reelection, and all seven are from the Solid South where the Republicans stand no show.

National campaign plans are already under way. Both parties will set up regional headquarters in Chicago to send speakers into the various states. Speakers' cost money, for few Senators or members of Congress finance themselves when going to the aid of a friend.

Men Of Wealth
It is perhaps fortunate that both the Republicans and Democratic Senatorial campaign committees are headed by men of considerable wealth.

The Chairman of the Republican Committee is Senator Phipps of Colorado, perhaps the richest individual in the senate. He is reputed worth $50,000,000. He has been identified with the steel, coal and iron industries all his life, and with the many side lines that branch off those huge industries.

At the head of the Democratic Campaign Committee is Senator Peter Goelet Gerry of Rhode Island. His fortune like his name is of colonial origin. Also he recently married the former Mrs. George W. Vanderbilt, whose fortune is comparable to others of that name.

While, of course they are not expected to advance the funds, it is their job to find them and nobody is envying them the job while the Reed Committee continues to function.

OFFICE CAT

By Junius

A woman used to leave her mark on a man with a rolling pin. Now, she uses a lipstick.

Tastes differ as we grow older, and it is hard for grown-ups to understand the little boy's delight when a lightning bug gets into his ice cream cone.

"Lafe Legg's wife sings to him every evening," in the postoffice at Booger Holler, related Jig Fiddling "Just sets and sings for hours at a time."

"Does he complain much about it?" asked some one.

"Not precisely; but he says he's about made up his mind to get a divorce from her or kill her, and he hasn't quite decided which."

You haven't done much if a lot of folks don't envy you.

Bang
I work in an office, the books I keep

For thirty dollars flat;
I played over time and fell asleep.
You can't blame me for that.

Now in that office are twenty girls
Who pound the typewriter key
And after the twenty had quit and gone home
This vision came to me:

The type writers all turned into girls,
And started to dance and sing;
With a well-oiled click these maids would kick
And shimmy and everything.

Each had a letter upon her head,
And some funny things were spelled;
Some were really nice,
But the rest were best withheld.

These maidens and I became good friends,
I could not stand their loss—
Till some one rapped me on the beam.
And I woke up to find 'twas the boss.

She—What makes you think you understand women so well?
He—I've been engaged to four different girls and never failed to get back the ring.

A man who stays out all night is sure sooner or later to get in the habit of looking on the dark side of life.

Correct this sentence: "He is an alien and makes more money than I can," said the man, "but I am not prejudiced against him."

Wife: "They reckon very shortly all work will be done by simply touching a button."

Husband: "I can't imagine you touching a button. Look at my warts."

"They ought to put a stop to it," said young Mrs. Torkins, who had been to a lecture on radio. "The idea of scattering all those messages indiscriminately through the air we breathe. It must be very unhealthy."

"That's right," agreed her husband. "And there are so many bedtime stories floating around that half the time I feel sleepy."

They're much alike. Men talk shop and women talk shopping.

Barons Bump Bears Again; Pels Regain Stride To Beat Crackers

Betting is still even in the Southern league, the Barons and Pels copped again, the Barons beating Mobile and the Pels stopping Atlanta. Barons had little trouble with the Bear outfit defeating them 7-2. Pels didn't go so easily over the Cracker combination, but won out 6-4 after Manager Gilbert had changed his batting order with much success. Gink Hendrick was moved down to cleanup position and hit a triple. Tucker followed Hendrick with two doubles and a pair of singles. Barons remain five and one half games behind the Pels.

Chattanooga dropped one to the Vols in a one sided slugfest which the Nashville folks copped 12-3. Eddie Lewis appeared five times at the bat and failed to connect. Memphis and Little Rock were rained out in the second inning.

Only two games were scheduled in the American league. Chicago shutout Speaker's Indians when Blankenship kept the hits well scattered while his teammates, who incidentally are leading the American league in batting, gathered 13 hits for 8 runs. Ernie Wingard was busy shutting off Tiger hopes for a win 5-2. Detroit's only runs came from home runs hit by Fothergill and Heilman.

Cincinnati moved half a game ahead of the Pirate charges yesterday when the Reds beat Grover Alexander in 11 innings 5-2. Carl Mays let the St. Louis outfit down with five meagley hits. Jim Bottomly and Douthett gathered all the St. Louis blows. The Cubs forced the Pirates to divide a twin frabas Chicago beating Joe Bush in the first 3-0, while Specs Meadows won the last for the Bucs 3-2. The second game was halted in the sixth with rain after Meadows had held the Cubs to three hits.

The Yankees are certainly long on home run hitters this year, five of the leading home run hitters in the American league are under Yank contracts. Babe Ruth leads the field with 26. Lazzeri is second with 11. Meusel has nine while Pat Collins and Jack Combs come along with six each. There are only eleven reputed home run hitters in the American league, which gives the Yanks a fifty-fifty chance at leading the field with all the mainstays in heavy clouting honors.

Something happened yesterday in the Detroit-St. Louis game that probably will not happen again in a score of years, then it may happen again in the next game. George Sisler hit to second base, his not bounder hitting O'Rourke on the shoe and bounding into right field for a home run. George continued serenely around the bases while startled Tigers wondered at what was coming off.

It was decided to change the meeting nights for the next month to Tuesday night and all the clubs will meet together so as to insure better co-operation among the clubs.

FALKVILLE WILL OPEN THURSDAY

Team Comes Here On Holiday With A Good Record

Falkville Independents open their season locally Thursday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock down at Malone Park against the Albany-Decatur combination of ball talents.

Falkville comes here with a reputation for playing good baseball in the old home town and is expected to show strength equal to that of Hartselle. The locals are bolstered for the coming battle and expect to give the Falkville folks a run for their money.

Harlan Hunter, manager of the local squad, failed to state his hurling choice for the half holiday tilt, but declared that he expected his club to show the rest of the county the way in ball tossing ability. Hunter was pleased with the Hartselle game on the Fifth, though his team lost he was pleased with the showing the club made in its second battle of the season.

Hartselle defeated the locals 8-7 with an eighth inning rally that netted four runs after the local infield had taken to the atmosphere. With a little more practice Hunter thinks his club will be ready to take on any amateur or semi-pro outfit in the North country.

The real thirst quencher

WHAT is the one essential thing about any summer drink—that makes it cooling and satisfying?

By far the most important part—yet costing the tiniest fraction of a cent—is pure, sparkling ice.

Besides a cold refrigerator, you want PLENTY of ice at all times for drinks, for frozen desserts and for many incidental uses.

No substitute—however expensive—can possibly fulfill all these requirements.

For perfect satisfaction and true economy, be sure your refrigerator is a GOOD one, and keep it well filled with pure, sparkling ice.
